Scotland, The Faroe Islands, & Iceland: North Atlantic Saga

JUNE 24–JULY 4, 2023

The Top Ten Marvels of the North Atlantic Saga: Scotland, the Faroe Islands, and Iceland

Welcome to a place of hearty folks, haunting lore, ragged coasts, emerald moors, misty peaks, and cacophonous bird-cliffs, all embraced by the big brooding sea.

Explore Faroe's Eysturoy Island, an outpost of Vikings, fjords, and trolls

The shores of Eysturoy Island are perfect for hiking, birding, and photography. Charming villages are linked by futuristic tunnels through mountains and beneath the ocean floor. The tiny town of Gjógv, on the northeast tip of the island, is small but steeped in Viking history. Fuglafjørður ("fjord of the birds"), a village on Eysturoy's east coast, lives up to its name. And then there's Risin og Kellingin ("The Giant and Hag"), two massive basaltic stacks said to be trolls who were caught by the rising sun and turned to stone.

2 Travel back through the centuries to the ancient, unspoiled Orkneys

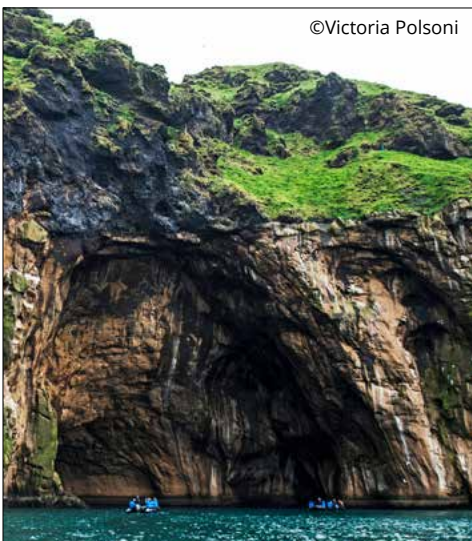

Though just offshore of the Scottish mainland, the Orkneys are a world apart. This gaggle of green isles, sandstone cliffs, stormy beaches, and ancient villages is an outpost of Viking heritage. Its main town, Kirkwall, is dominated by the monumental St. Magnus Cathedral, dating from 1137. Be sure to check out the Hall of Clestrain, childhood home of Arctic explorer John Rae. The Heart of Neolithic Orkney, a UNESCO World Heritage site, home to the eerie Stonehenge-like standing stones of the 4,000-year-old Ring of Brodgar.

3 Live large in the Faroe's micro-metropolis, the wild yet cultured Tórshavn

Overlooked by peaks and embracing the sea, Tórshavn means "harbour of Thor." With 20,000 residents, this former Viking trading centre is quaint—yet it's the capital and by far the biggest city of the Faroes. Culture is rich here. The National Art Gallery is a treasure, set amid gorgeous grounds with walking trails. Tinganes is the town's historic centre, home to grass-roofed buildings and the Faroese government headquarters. Nordic House hosts sonorous musical performances. And be sure to pop in to one of the wide range of shops, eateries, and pubs.

4 Visit Iceland's famous Heimaey, the town that was nearly buried in ash

Off Iceland's south coast, Vestmannaeyjar comprises countless rocks, skerries, and islands. Only one of these has residents—and they're lucky to be alive. Heimaey became famous in 1973 when it was nearly destroyed by the erupting volcano Eldfell. Hike to the now-peaceful volcano and visit the Eldheimar museum, built around a house excavated after being buried in ash. Nearby sea cliffs offer excellent opportunities for Zodiac cruises with bird sightings, including razorbills, fulmars, and puffins.

5 Drop anchor at faraway Fair Isle, a haven for history buffs and birders

The most remote inhabited island in the United Kingdom, mystic Fair Isle lies amid rich fishing grounds halfway from the Orkneys to the Shetlands. This former Viking hub belonged to Norway until the fifteenth century. Now it's an idyllic colony of roughly sixty-five shepherds and craftspeople, the latter of whom are famous for their knitted wool sweaters. Visit the local museum, dedicated to preserving island heritage. Fair Isle is also celebrated for its birds: some 350 species flocks here, including fulmars, kittiwakes, skuas (locally called "bonxies"), and the sweetest wee puffins you'll ever see.

6 Soak it all in at the stunning Múlafossur waterfall, where a river spouts into the sea

Farther afield from the capital of Tórshavn, the Faroes truly go wild. Take advantage of the many natural highlights of the region, including the dramatic and commanding overlook at Kaldbaksfjorour, the bird cliffs and sea caves of Vestmanna, and probably the most photographed spot in the whole country: the spectacular Múlafossur waterfall in Gásadalur. The latter is reached by a convenient tunnel, but be sure to note the old switchback trail over the mountain, once used by the local postman!

7 Marvel at Faroese creatures and culture at Suðuroy Island

Awash in the cold froth of the Atlantic, the Faroes are eighteen islands forming an autonomous protectorate under the Danish Crown. Fjords, crags, moors, fog, Viking rune stones, and grassy-roofed cottages abound. Suðuroy Island, famed for its sea cliffs, is an avian paradise, featuring storm petrels and puffins. In the tiny village of Sumba, dating from the seventh century, try your hand (or is it foot?) at Faroese dancing. Hiking is also excellent in the foothills of Beinisvørð Mountain, affording panoramic views of this mysterious, enchanting region.

8 Have a hot time in Reykjavík, a city that's ancient, quaint, and chic

According to lore, Iceland's hip little capital was founded by Ingólfr Arnarson, who liked the steamy local hot springs (Reykjavík means "smokey bay"). Today, eleven centuries later, the city boasts dozens of geothermal heated outdoor pools. It's worth extending your stay here by a few days to take a dip, check out the towering expressionist-style Hallgrímskirkja Church, stroll by the placid Tjörnin pond in the city centre, or visit the National Culture House (which preserves the Norse Sagas in their original manuscripts).

9 Commune with sea stacks and seabirds at rugged Mykines Island

Mykines is the westernmost of the Faroes and a geological marvel. Great columns of basalt called the Stone-wood tower thirty metres above the ocean. On the western end of the island, connected by a forty-metre footbridge, is the islet Mykineshólmur, famed for its century-old lighthouse. Watch for seabirds, including puffins, guillemots, and storm petrels by the thousands. Meanwhile, the human population of Mykines is far smaller—just ten friendly full-time locals, who for the most part can only come and go by helicopter.

10 Be dazzled by energetic Aberdeen, Scotland's glittering city on the sea

Aberdeen sparkles—in more ways than one. Tucked between the mouths of the Dee and Don rivers, this is Scotland's economic dynamo, glittering with riches from North Sea oil. It also glitters, literally, from the mica infusing its historic stone buildings. Arrive here at least a day early to marvel at the city's many attractions: its famously verdant parks (forty-five in all!); its museums, the most renowned of which is the Aberdeen Maritime Museum; and its bustling port—a cradle of shipbuilding, fishing vessels, oil tenders, and, of course, your very own floating home away from home!

Itinerary

DAY 1: ABERDEEN, SCOTLAND

Many of Aberdeen's historic stone buildings are made of locally quarried granite; high in mica, they can sparkle like silver. The city is famed for its forty-five parks, gardens, and floral displays. Though it is now a modern city, Aberdeen retains its old world charm. We board the Ocean Endeavour in the afternoon.

DAY 2: KIRKWALL, ORKNEY

Kirkwall is dominated by the massive St. Magnus Cathedral, dating from 1137. We'll visit the Heart of Neolithic Orkney, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, where we'll find the 4,000-year-old Ring of Brodgar. We'll also tour the Hall of Clestrain, childhood home of Arctic explorer John Rae.

DAY 3: FAIR ISLE

Once a Viking hub, Fair Isle is now an idyllic island colony of artists and shepherds. The island boasts 350 bird species, including puffins and great skuas in substantial numbers. The local museum is dedicated to preserving island heritage.

DAY 4: SUMBA, SUÐUROY ISLAND, FAROE ISLANDS

Suðuroy Island, Faroes, is famed for its dramatic cliffs towering over the North Atlantic, and is a paradise for birds, including European storm petrels and Atlantic puffins. The village of Sumba, population 239, occupied since the seventh century, is a stronghold of Faroese chain dancing. Hiking is excellent in the foothills of nearby Beinisvørð Mountain, affording spectacular, panoramic views of the region.

DAY 5: TÓRSHAVN

Tórshavn, "Thor's harbour," is the Faroe Islands' capital and largest town. A former Viking trading centre, Tórshavn is a splendid little city to explore. The National Art Gallery is a treasure, surrounded by gorgeous grounds with walking trails. We will visit Nordic House and experience excellent shopping, restaurants, and pubs.

DAY 6-7: WESTERN FAROE ISLANDS

The northwestern shores of Eysturoy and Streymoy islands are perfect for hiking, birding, and photography. Charming villages connected by high-tech tunnels through mountains and beneath the ocean floor are a unique and startling feature of Faroese life. The spectacular waterfall at Gásadalur is reached through one such tunnel—but look for the old switchback trail over the mountain, once used by the local postman!

DAY 8: MYKINES ISLAND

Mykines is the westernmost of the Faroes and a geological marvel. Great columns of basalt (called the Stone-wood) tower thirty metres above the ocean. On the western end of the island, connected by a forty metre footbridge, is the islet Mykineshólmur, famed for its sea stacks and a lighthouse dating to 1909. Mykines has been identified as an Important Bird Area by BirdLife International.

DAY 9: AT SEA

Today we will enjoy a day at sea. With onboard education and time spent on deck, we will keep our eyes open for marine wildlife and seabirds!

DAY 10: HEIMAÆY, VESTMANNAEYJAR (WESTMAN ISLANDS), ICELAND

Vestmannaeyjar lies off the south coast of Iceland and comprises fourteen islands, numerous rocks, and skerries. Only the largest island, Heimaey, is inhabited.

Numerous species of seabirds, including the famous puffin, nest in the steep rock faces along the ocean cliffs. The volcanically active area has seen two major eruptions in recent times: the formation of the island of Surtsey in 1963, and the Eldfell eruption ten years later that destroyed much of Heimaey.

DAY 11: REYKJAVÍK, ICELAND

Reykjavík, “smoky bay”, is a cosmopolitan capital city on the site of what is believed to be the first permanent settlement in Iceland, established in 874 AD. Entirely powered by geothermal energy, Reykjavík is among the cleanest, greenest, and safest cities in the world.

We'll disembark the Ocean Endeavour in the morning.
